

Higher average regional temperature linked to serious vision impairment among older Americans

June 29 2023

Credit: Pixabay/CC0 Public Domain

American adults aged 65 years older living in warmer regions are more likely to have serious vision impairment than their peers living in cooler regions, according to a recent study published in the journal Ophthalmic Epidemiology.

Compared to those who lived in counties with average temperature of less than 50°F (

Citation: Higher average regional temperature linked to serious vision impairment among older Americans (2023, June 29) retrieved 4 July 2023 from <https://medicalxpress.com/news/2023-06-higher-average-regional-temperature-linked.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.